

CLIMATE CHANGE ADAPTATION

Locally, many island communities in the Solomon Islands already have their own strategies in dealing with some of the impacts of Climate Change and these measures are based on traditional knowledge.

TRADITIONAL KNOWLEDGE

A Solomon Island typical local tide protector which is a common traditional method of protection and adapting to the climate Change impacts caused by sea-level rise, high-tides, extreme storm-surges and coastal erosion

Source: NDMO

© SIG CCO

Printed with the assistance from the SIG Climate Change Office & SNC Project

Design and layout by
George Baragamu